1976 - - - and our country is 200 years old. How thankful we should be for the freedom which is ours and how important it is that we know the hardships and toil that went into the making of our great land. Let us all resolve at the beginning of this new year to read more about the history books, but if one wishes a little fiction mixed with his facts, there are numbers of books related to Colonial times and the Revolutionary War.

In one of my previous letters I gave brief views of several books including the ones by Inglis Fletcher. These are historical fiction and very good. There are three missing but we are hoping to fill these in before the year is out, if they are still in print.

Then the many books about Jamestown and Williamsburg, which I have mentioned before, are all such good reading for this year of our country's birthday.

In the January-February issue of the NRTA Journal there is an article by Ora Dodd about the Forgotten Women Women of the Revolution. This author says history is a man's world. She mentions seven women who played an important part in winning the war. First among them is Abigail Adams who was our second President's wife. It is hard to believe with all the things she did that she was still considered inferior to a man. She never went to school a day in her life but her father, who was a minister, taught her to read and she went through the parsonage library and on to her Grandfather Quincy's larger one. When her husband went off to the first Continental Congress in Philadlphia, she supervised his law business, ran the farm and did all the work as housewife and mother that most women had to do in those days. For almost ten years she saw her husband only during brief visits and when he was sent abroad on diplomatic missions, years went by without seeing him. Her husband valued her good sense and fresh ideas, but on one thing he was adamant. He definitely did not approve when she suggested that Congress give more attention to the rights of women. John Adams made enemies but Abigail was loved and admired by all who knew her. She died before her son, John Quincy Adams, became our sixth President.

If you would like to read more about Abigail Adams look for the book by Irving Stone in your County Library.

Mercy Otis Warren of Plymouth, Mass., was called a "firebrand" of the Revolution. She paid no attention to the restricted rules for women and wrote for Boston newspapers, published patriotic plays, entertained and encouraged patriot leaders, such as Sam and John Adams, Elbridge Gerry and her own husband, James Warren. These men did not want her to be silent as they saw what a lot of good she was doing and admired her for it. Her brother, James, shared his Harvard learning with her so she was widely read in history and literature. She wrote plays mocking the British leaders but being a lady she did not sign them. It was in her home that the plans for the Committees of Correspondence originated. This system of letters helped to keep the Colonies informed and united.

Next week I shall try to bring you more information on this same subject and in the mean time perhaps you would like to do some research on the Women of the Revolution. Your librarian stands ready to help.

USDA Announces Revised State Funding

According to James R. Ford, Jr., Chairman of the Appomattox County ASC Committee, revised state allocations of funds for the 1976 Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP) were announced Dec. 30 by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

An initial $85 million funding level and other details of the 1976 calendar year ACP were announced by USDA Dec. 5. The revised allocation of $175 million is based on action by Congress denying the proposed deferral of $90 million of the contract authority contained in the Fiscal 1976 Appropriations Act for USDA.

The allocations were determined by the Secretary of Agriculture according to the conservation needs of the states.

Deducted from the $175 million is $4 million to be allocated to states as needed to satisfy the law requiring increases in payments to farmers who earn less than $200 of cost-share assistance on approved conservation practices during the year: $1,750,000 for technical assistance to farmers by the Forest Service (FS); and $250,000 for the Naval Stores Conservation Program (NSCP) that involves turpentine harvesting in the Southeast.

The amount available for the State of Virginia under this program is $2,742,000. Appomattox County will receive a share of the State allocation. The amount has not been announced at this time.

Nelson 7 - 0

After a startling 73-42 victory over the Raiders, Nelson maintains a flawless record of 7-0.

Nelson, aided by the Smith brothers, Clinton and James, held the Raiders to 14 points in the first half while Nelson seized 32-points.

Nelson had four men in double figures with Clinton Smith being the high scorer, having 16 points. His brother, James, was close behind with 14. Danny Henderson claimed 13 while Mark Gamble sank 10.

The Raiders were lead by Mitch Eggleston in scoring with 9 points. Close behind Eggleston was E. Robinson and Kelso, both having 8.

Nelson shot a high 53% from the floor while the Raiders were held to 23% of their attempts.

After the loss to Nelson the Raiders stand in the Seminole District with a 1-6 record.

MISS WHITES FIFTH GRADE 4-H CLUB

On December 18, 1975, President Laura Walton called Miss White's 4-H Club meeting to order. Shelia Roach lead us in song and game.

The meeting was then turned over to Mr. Sweet and Mr. Goldman. They explained to us about the public speaking contest which will be on January 20, 1976. They gave us some helpful information on preparing and giving our speeches.

The meeting was then adjourned by our President.

"I've never had cancer. But I'd be crazy to ignore it. I know many cancers can be cured if they're detected early. But you've got to know the warning signals: Change in bowel or bladder habits A sore that does not heal. Unusual bleeding or discharge. Thickening or lump in breast or elsewhere. Indigestion or difficulty in swallowing. Obvious change in wart or mole. Nagging cough or hoarseness.

"If one of them appears, see your doctor right away. The odds are you don't have cancer. But only your doctor can tell you that for sure."
